NAGLE CASE IN COUNTY COURT

Charmain Assault Case Occupys Attention of the Court. True Bills Returned in Other Cases, Other Court Business.

The regular November Court convened in the Adams County Court House on Monday.

True bills were returned in the following cases:

Com. vs. Samuel Dunlap on oath of Jesse Taylor.

Com. vs. Clarence M. McCullough, on oath of Annie Hahn.

Com. vs. Mike Demaggio, Jacob Rosenwitch. Adam Rosenwitch, charged with feloniously stealing from the person of Thomas Kohler.

Com. vs. Charles Johnson, charged with larceny on oath of Ellen Owens.

A nol pros was entered in the case of the Commonwealth vs Raymond Shull and Harry Longenecker, charged with burglariously entering a dwelling.

The petition to view and, if necessary, lay out a road in Cumberland township from a point in road from Robert Bream's to Pitzer's school House from Gettysburg to Fairfield filed and confirmed nisi to width of 24 feet.

David Krise and William Hensel were appointed tipstaves for the first week and David F. Sturry and Henry C. Rider for the second week. Harry A. Snyder was appointed foreman of the Grand Jury.

The first case called was that against Archibald Nagle, charged with criminally assaulting Lulu Mc-Sprenkle near her home in Hamiltonban township on May 8. The delony date is about 17 years of age while the girl is under 16. The case is the first in Adams County Oyer and Terminer Court since the Eyler murder trial.

A large number of jurors were challenged before the necessary twelve were finally secured, the following being selected: Lewis Kriss, Frank M. Miller, James B. Boyd, C. B. Hartman, Samuel H. Brown, Calvin Good, John J. Adams, Daniel Lott, Harvey Bixler, George Worley, George M. Ott and T. J. Hardy.

The case in all its revolting details is proving one of the most unsavory ever tried in the local Courts. It was continued all day Tuesday.

The Eagles case was completed Wednesday and at the opening of Court in the afternoon the jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The District Attorney withdrew the case against Clarence McCullough in Adams County Court on Thursday, the Court giving its sanction also. The next case taken up was that against the Aspers Italians charged with robbing their companion while he slept. It will likely occupy some time.

TOWN MEN IN UGLY RUNAWAY

Levi Pitzer and Charles Coberan Thrown from Buggy when Horse Takes Fright at Trolley Car on Emmitsburg Road.

Charles H. Coberan and Levi Pitzer were participants in an ugly driving accident since the Emmitsburg Road near town on Wednesday afternoon, their horse running away, the buggy being damaged and both men bruised up slight injuries.

The men were driving out the Emmitsburg Road towards the Peach Orchard when they met the closed trolley car "Sparkle" coming toward them. The horse shied at the sight of the "Y" near the High Water Mark. The motorman saw that the men were in a hurry and waited for them to cross the tracks. He then proceeded. The horse took fright when the car started to move and jumped to the side of the road.

The frightened animal kept on and finally ran over the main track onto the bank, narrowly missing a tree and throwing out both of the occupants. Mr. Pitzer falling on Mr. Coberan. The former was at least stunned for a time and after the horse which was running full speed had been buried against a mile or more away.

Mr. Coberan was somewhat bruised about the face and suffered from the sudden shock but is otherwise uninjured. The buggy was slightly damaged.

The trolley car was stopped when the motorman saw that the horse was frightened.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A LANDSLIDE

Edward Newman Knocked Down when Three Tons of Earth Fell upon Him. Escaped Serious Injury.

While working at excavating the large bank at the Philadelphia and Reading property along North Washington street Edward Newman was caught by a landslide on Tuesday and narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injuries.

The bank which is about twenty feet in height is being dug away to make a new road to accommodate the teams which haul the lime for shipping the tracks back of the college property. Mr. Newman was engaged in undermining a large portion of the bank in order that the upper ground could be thrown down and work made easier.

He dug too far in however and suddenly and without warning the huge amount of ground above him, weighing at least three tons, started to slide. He jumped to the side but was caught and thrown with great force to the ground. The force of the landslide knocked him a little out of its path so the man would have been buried completely underneath the large mass. As it was, he was covered by the heavy earth from the knees down and suffered greatly from his fall. After some time Mr. Newman was received in his next day suffered so much from the effects of the accident that he was confined to his home for days.

The other workmen at the place were saved by the fact that they were working at some distance from Mr. Newman and were not in the path of the falling earth. They at once went to his rescue.

At almost the same time another accident occurred within a half dozen yards. John Miller, a freight engineer, was thrown violently on the levers while coupling cars and sustained severe bruises to his thigh and hand. The quick movement of some cars caused the accident.

PINK EYE IN TOWN SCHOOLS

School Children and Older People Suffering from Uncomfortable Disease. Physician Says Due Causes Trouble.

Pink Eye is causing discomfort in scores of Gettysburg people, old as well as young being afflicted with the malady. Physicians report a very large number of cases in the town and the school children are suffering the most from the uncomfortable ailment.

A local physician in discussing the trouble this morning said: "I have had a number of cases of Pink Eye in town. Many children are suffering from it while a few of the 'grown up's' have come to for treatment. I attribute it principally to the long dusty spell, the dust seeming to cause considerable irritation in the eyes. This, I think, is also the cause for the many cases of Pink Eye reported from the country."

Prof. Willis A. Burgoon, Principal of the town schools, talked of the matter this morning and said: "I have noticed it to a great extent. It is the trouble in the Gettysburg schools. It has not prevailed to such a very marked extent. Although it is known to be contagious I cannot say that it has spread. I have received notes from the Board of Health and as usual, when the disease is prevalent, pupils keep on coming even though they are afflicted with the disease.

"Prevention is better than cure. Pink Eye spread over an entire school, showing no contagious it is. The cause seems to be the principle of a germ in the air that taught by Mrs. Wilbe. The teacher here is suffering, also, and is unable on duty. There is really nothing serious about the disease but it causes considerable discomfort."

A number of cases of older people having indications have been noticed and the condition seems to be hardening on a small epidemic. The statement of a local physician that quite a number of neighboring towns reporting the same condition.

A WEEK OF PLAYS

The Taylor Stock Company billed for a week of plays at the Opera House week with matinee Saturday, is highly spoken of by the theatre-going public of Chambersburg, where they are now. They opened in the strongest and pleasing play of the week, "Cousin Kate" also, and an excellent snap string cast, the Taylor company will unmodestly announce that it is the strongest organization ever seen in this city in repertoire. The company will present the plays selected for the opening on Monday night, Mr. Morton's performance of "John Hale" is the play of the week, "Cousin Kate" will be remembered. "The story of "Four Boys in Factory" is altogether wholesome and the simple truths which are set forth in the plot live in the memory of the boys who see the play for many a day. The Taylor Stock Company seems unusually the merit of the ability of its company to portray the plays presented in a manner that has won the approval of the public. A refined vaudeville in 3 bills of new vaudeville is interwoven in the acts. Other plays to be given during the week are "Oberon," "Hoeing the Harvest," "Bad Hats," "Palsely Accused" and "The Avenger." Seats on sale Thursday morning. Popular prices will prevail. The company is playing at York this week.

STRAW RIDE

Two Taverns, Nov. 14—On Thursday night a merry crowd of straw riders left Gettysburg bound for Arendtsville to the home of Mr. D. G. Hamilton. The young folks were out on pleasure bent and they succeeded in having a good time. From the time of their arrival at their destination the social moment was spent idly. Games of all kinds were played and excellent music was furnished by the Misses Hamilton assisted by Messrs. Hahn and Dell.

At a late hour the guests were invited to the dining room, where they found a table laden with everything that tempts the palate in a good supper. The table, decorated with chrysanthemums, presented a very attractive appearance.

In the morning of the morning the party disbanded, all being agreed that a very pleasant evening.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Rudisill and Mrs. Lydia Stockslager, Misses Ogle, Arnold, Hershberger, Bitz, Bitz, Bowers, Mummert, Beulah Lipps, Cora Hotter, Nim Hamilton, Ruth Harper, Grace Hodge, Elsie Smith, and Ruth Herbing, Messrs. Good Blankets Cheap

We have told you all about our great Blanket purchase of some time ago, and a great many people have availed themselves of the saving we promised. We wouldn't have to recommend these Blankets in print, if you would come and look at them without our doing so.

The diversity and scope of this Blanket stock can best be expressed by saying, we have Blankets from 50cts up to $10 per pair, and that there is a full 20 per cent saving on every pair. That means, 10cts on a 50c Blanket, a $4.00 Blanket for $3.00, a $10 Blanket for $8.00.

Whites, Greys, Scarlets, Plaids

Let us suggest that a pair of Blankets make an elegant Christmas Gift for the house-keeper, or for the house-keeping boy.

The jury in the case of U. L. Gliddefiar vs. Reynolds Brothers brought in a verdict Wednesday in favor of the plaintiff for $246.70.

ADAMS COUNTY SAVES $1250

Abolishment of Spring Election Means Saving of money to Adams County. Primary Cost is Paid by the State.

The county of Adams will save about $1250 each year because of the operation of the new election law under the constitutional amendments, as the cost of holding the primary election will be paid by the state, that is paid in full in June and the general election in November upon the dates already set apart. The February election will be dispensed with.

Figures in the office of the county commissioners show that the January primary this year cost $676.69 and the February election of 1909 $1250.70. These are close enough to the average to indicate that these two elections cost each year on an average of about $1250. Consequently the state pays the expense of the primary the county standing the cost of the February election. Thus they are done away with this expense will naturally cease.

The question of how there will be one more spring election that of next year. After that time terms of all city and county officers will be made to conform to elections to be filled at the regular elections, adopting the date above the present expense of the November election.

The new system is in vogue in New York and several other states and generally speaking with success.

Another side of the matter is brought out however when it is shown that within the same time as the abolition of the primary and February election, yet many will fail to receive the benefit of the change, all which this money usually proved most welcome for various purposes, and also aid him in spraying, pruning, thinning of fruit, planting trees, cultivation, fertilization and with other practical work as may be necessary to secure the best results.

The public will be invited to visit the orchard at least three times in each year at which time demonstrations of spraying, pruning, planting, etc., and on orchard will be accepted with a distinct understanding in that respect.

DR. R. B. WEAVER HONORED

The Philadelphia Academy of Medicine conferred its first honorary fellowship upon Dr. Rufus Weaver, professor of regional and applied anatomy in the Hahnemann Medical College. More than 120 of Dr. Weaver's former pupils who graduated from Hahnemann Medical College were present at the ceremony, which took place in Odd Fellow Temple.

Dr. Weaver is a graduate of Pennsylvania Medical College of the class of 1885. He studied under Dr. D. Hayes Agnew, and also had been associated with Hahnemann. Among his achievements the greatest is considered his discovery of a cure for rice cerebro-spinal nervous system, which is the only specimen of its kind in existence.

Dr. Rufus R. Weaver was born January 15, 1848, and resided in Gettysburg. He is the son of the late Samuel Weaver, of West Middle street. He has a brother, George, living on Baltimore street and his sister, Miss Jennie, is an assistant professor at college.

All the older residents here remember Dr. Weaver's father, who married Miss Sadie Stallsmith—Mrs. Fleming and son are now spending a few days at home of Emanual Weikert on route 3.

Sr. and Mrs. John Herr and family, of Lancaster, are visiting at the home of his brother, Frank Herr on route 3.

Mrs. Curfield Jacobs, of route 4, who has been ill for some time is somewhat improved.

Mrs. F. A. Weaver and sister, Miss Ella Cassatt, of route 18, spent Thursday in Harrisburg.

MODEL ORCHARDS IN THIS COUNTY

Pennsylvania State Department of Agriculture to Take Five Orchards in Adams County to Use as Models.

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture will establish in the near future five model orchards in Adams county. Many other counties in the state will be given the same consideration.

The object is to direct, in each fruit growing district, the care of an orchard to one up-to-date manner, to show the public how to obtain the best results, especially in pest control.

Fruit growing farmers who will co-operate in this movement, by permitting their orchards to be used for the purpose, should write at once to Prof. H. A. Surface, state zoologist, Harrisburg, Pa., for information on the subject.

It is not proposed to take an old and totally neglected orchard and bring about a complete transformation, but to take some orchard where it is found in fair condition, and assist the owner with expert advice and attention in regard to the management of the orchard and the suppression of pests.

It is believed that the effect of the example of one successful man is a more powerful incentive to others. Should the methods in his orchard prove to be the best, as shown by lines of trees and large fruit, yields and better products, it invariably results in other farmers adopting the methods above the present expense of the' November election.

The new system is in vogue in New York and several other states and generally speaking with success.

Another side of the matter is brought out however when it is shown that within the same time as the abolition of the primary and February election, yet many will fail to receive the benefit of the change, all which this money usually proved most welcome for various purposes, and also aid him in spraying, pumping, thinning of fruit, planting trees, cultivation, fertilization and with other practical work as may be necessary to secure the best results.

The public will be invited to visit the orchard at least three times in each year at which time demonstrations of spraying, pruning, planting, etc., and on orchard will be accepted with a distinct understanding in that respect.

Home Course In Live Stock Farming

VII.—Silos and Silage.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture" "Raising Money on the Farm," Etc.

THERE is no feed on the farm that is more economical than silage, than to thirteen tons of green feed can be produced on an acre and then made into silage this is practically canned and will keep in good condition all winter. Stock is in especial need of some succulent feed during the winter. Indeed, food of this kind is essential if the greatest economical profits are to be obtained. Silage supplies succulent feed in the cheapest and most convenient form.[1] It is an especially valuable feed allowing cows, calves, and there is less risk of failure due to improper results.

Details of Construction.

Walls the silo should be located as close to the barn as possible, it is not advisable to put it inside the barn. It takes up room that is needed more for other purposes, is unhandy to fill, and the risk of fire silage is objectionable. There will be some odor anyway, but not so much when the silo is located outside the barn. A handy method of construction is to remove the silo with the feedway of the barn by a narrow route which extends the full height of the silo. The silage can be thrown down this chute and carried into the barn. There should be doors at frequent intervals the entire length of the silo. A frequent mistake in making silo doors is in considering them too small, thus making it unhandy to get out and in. Sometimes they have been so near that the doors fit snugly, as the silo must be absolutely air tight for the silage is to keep well. A silo is really a big can, and silage is nothing more or less than canned corn. The chemist about the door may be fitted with wet cloth before the silage is put in, or tarred paper may be placed over the doors.

Another point to look to is to see that the inner walls are as smooth as possible, so that the silage will settle evenly. Thus avoiding settling means air spaces and decay.

Some expense can be saved in building a silo by not carrying it extend four or five feet below the surface of the ground. If deeper than this it will be too much work to get the silage out. Either cement, hard burned brick or stone may be used for building the foundation. The foundation up to the surface of the ground should be eight to ten inches thick, with a beveled surface about four inches wider. The foundation should be free from the walls of the silo on the inside, so as not to interfere with the settling of the silage. If the silo is built of hard, impervious clay no floor will be needed. In loose soil or sand there should be a six inches thick, made as described in article 2, will be necessary.

Size of the Silo.

The size of the silo will depend upon the amount of stock to whom silage is to be fed. It is better to get size from depth than from diameter, as the pressure due to additional depth causes the silage to keep better. The greater compactness also increases the capacity of the silo. Cows should be fed at all times the silo should be of such a size that at least two inches in depth will be fed each day. If fed oftener than this it will spoil on top and the value will be reduced. The ordinary size for a quarter section is fourteen feet in diameter and thirty feet in depth. If more capacity is wanted one to twenty feet may be added to the depth. The following table, condensed from bulletin 100 of the Iowa experiment station, gives the capacity of silos of various sizes:

Inside diameter.	Capacity of silo. Height.	Capacity of silo. Tons to fill.	Pounds feed daily.
12 ft.	30 ft.	40	1,200
14 ft.	30 ft.	54	1,620
16 ft.	30 ft.	70	2,100
14 ft.	40 ft.	73	2,190
16 ft.	40 ft.	93	2,790
18 ft.	40 ft.	118	3,540
16 ft.	50 ft.	116	3,480
18 ft.	50 ft.	146	4,380
20 ft.	50 ft.	180	5,400
18 ft.	60 ft.	175	5,250
20 ft.	60 ft.	216	6,480
22 ft.	60 ft.	261	7,830
20 ft.	70 ft.	252	7,560
22 ft.	70 ft.	304	9,120
24 ft.	70 ft.	362	10,860
22 ft.	80 ft.	348	10,440
24 ft.	80 ft.	416	12,480
24 ft.	90 ft.	468	14,040
24 ft.	100 ft.	520	15,600

[1] The following table from the same bulletin gives the approximate amounts of silage needed per day by the various classes of animals:

Kind of animal.	Pounds.
Calves	10-20
Fattening cattle	15-30
Dairy cattle	20-40
Sheep	2-4

Corn is the principal silage crop because of its yield and feeding value. It should be cut for silage just as the ears are well dented. If cut too early some silage will result. If left longer it will be too dry to pack well. This can be helped by running water into the silo as it is being filled. A wind elevator is the most common factory means of getting the silage from the center to the top of the silo. A long canvas tube extending down from the silo keeps the silage well mixed. Tramping the silage thoroughly as it is put in is one of the secrets of having it keep well. It should be especially well tramped around the edges. After the silo is filled a few ears may be scattered around on top. These will spread, forming an air tight covering, which will keep all but the top few inches of silage from spoiling.

FIG. XIII.—A TILE SILO.

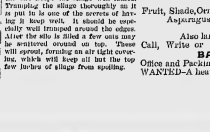

FIG. XIV.—A STAVE SILO.

Feeding Silage.

Silage is fed to considerable extent to silo construction. If properly put up a concrete silo is practically indestructible. Silos must be well reinforced with steel wire and must be put up by some one who understands the business if they are to be satisfactory. Silage freezes worse in a cement than in a stave silo. A double walled cement silo does work with this objection, although it increases the cost considerably. With the present high prices of lumber, however, a good double walled concrete silo does not greatly exceed a good stave silo of the same size in cost.

Stone, brick and cement blocks are all used for silos with good results. The main thing is to get them laid accurately and properly reinforced.

A silo made of lumber building tile is giving good satisfaction at the Iowa experiment station. These tiles are laid in cement, being put together edgewise. The resulting dead air space is very effective in preventing freezing. When filled with a coating of cement such a silo is air and moisture proof. It is as durable and satisfactory as a

Home Course In Live Stock Farming

VIII.—Managing the Dairy Farm.

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture" "Raising Money on the Farm," Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

WHEN properly carried on dairying is one of the most profitable branches of live stock farming. The work is somewhat exacting, but that is not a serious objection as long as the profits keep coming in. As shown in article 6, dairying does not necessarily call for the farm than any other branch of live stock farming. Dairying is adapted to many localities where general farming cannot be carried on. Low, wet lands are too hilly to be cultivated can be profitably utilized as pasture for dairy cows. There is less the danger of the dairy business being overdone, as population increases, the demand for dairy products becomes greater. The milk and butter can be sent more economically than any other class of live stock.

In starting in the dairy business the type of cow to select will depend largely on conditions. For the general farm, where dairying is more or less of a side line, a dairy cow combining milk and butter production. Cows that are from inferior sires are not fed to satisfactory beef animals. The market for milk and butter purposes cows is that they cannot be sold to the butcher when they are no longer serviceable. Once in awhile an extra good cow will be found, but there is no market for such cows, as there is no demand for them. They tend to go either to the beef or dairy type. A good herd of first class dual purpose cows is hard to get and to keep when it has been obtained.

Selecting the Cows.

If dairying is to be the prominent feature of the farming operations it will pay to go into one of the special dairy breeds. These special purpose dairy cows are specialists in giving out milk, and the best ones do it effectively and long period of time. There is little choice between breeds. The Jerseys give very rich milk, but are small in size and subject to quite a few inferior conditions well. Holsteins are hardy, large in size and show a rough feed to advantage. Their calves can be turned into good beef animals at veal, and their large milk flow means more skimmed for calves and pigs. Where milk is being sold the small percentage of fat is a big drawback. Guernseys are hardier than Jerseys. They give a little more milk than the

NARROW ESCAPE

George Crouse, mail carrier on Gettysburg route, 1 at noon on Tuesday down his team as beside the large telephone pole in front of Hammers store, in Highland township, unloaded the large iron mail box on the pole, received the mail, jumped in his sulky and just as he passed the post both large poles dropped flat on the road without a moment's notice. Some seconds later in front of the store the horse would have been killed and Mr. Crouse hurt. Miss Mae Dayen just passed the pole and was on the store steps as the post fell and Mr. W. H. Cover, the new proprietor at Keystone Mills, was just coming up towards the pole when it fell before him. In all three cases several seconds sooner or later would have caused serious trouble. Both poles were entirely decayed at the ground, yet withstood the heavy wind storms all fall and in the calm when not a leaf was moving both poles dropped at one and the same moment.

CLEANING OUT CUSTOM HOUSE

Six Inspectors Suspended as Result of Sugar Fraud.

75 OTHERS ARE ACCUSED

Collector Loeb Will Make a Thorough Job of the Investigation and Will Be Backed Up by Washington.

New York, Nov. 19.—Four customs inspectors have been suspended as the result of sugar frauds. Six more are under suspicion and will be suspended if the results of the investigation now being made by Collector Loeb, who at the same time suspended six other inspectors who are charged with accepting tips on the docks. The collector refused to discuss the matter further than to say that he was "cleaning up with the charges against them, and the suspension of the six made yesterday and today are temporary."

Only four cases in which Collector Loeb acted are only the beginning of a general housecleaning in the custom office. There are a large number of other cases under consideration, and the collector is expected to act upon them as soon as he finishes with the number of employes of the local customs service who are charged with being concerned in cheating the government grown every day, and it is now estimated that the number involved is a hundred men in the classified and unclassified service in all. The names of these men and the charges against them are in the hands of the treasury department. Some of the men are charged with graft against whom evidence has been obtained which shows they accepted tips, but a large number are said to have been concerned in the sugar frauds. It is likely that before very long there will be a mass of charges by the force of employes and others employed at the docks. In connection with the coming investigation it is pointed out that Collector Loeb once took the office that upset the apple cart of hands of fifty-six men employed in the appraiser's.

William F. Wakeman, former appraiser of this port, representing Washington, where he had a long talk with Secretary of the Treasury Shaw Tuesday, during which the sugar inquiry was gone over at length, declared that he gave no information to the press bureau.

WARSHIPS SENT TO CURB ZELAYA

Two Americans Shot as Rebels in Nicaragua.

PROMPT ACTION TAKEN

United States Will Probe the Killing to the Bottom—Revolutionists Bring Executed Witness Trial and Three Women Subjected to Indignities and Outrages.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The navy department ordered the Yorktown to proceed at once to Corinto, Nicaragua, from the Pacific mainstream, and the Des Moines, to Port Limon, Nicaragua, owing to disturbance received at the state department.

The United States consul at Managua reports that two American citizens, Leonard Grace and Carl Baurman, of Bluefields, Pa., have been captured with the revolutionists and shot by order of President Zelaya. The execution took place at El Castillo, near Greytown. The American consul asked President Zelaya to commute the sentence to imprisonment, but a reply was sharply made that the sentences were final.

The consul then sent a diplomatic note to Senor Rodriguez, the chargé d'affaires at Washington, with the corresponding explanation. The note was short and polite from the fact that it was brief, but was emphatic in its diction and significance.

Owing to the seriousness of the situation the state department has informed the American citizens in Nicaragua that the intended reception to Secretary Root has been indefinitely postponed. This probably means that the secretary of state and Mr. Bacon will be severed if the investigation to be made of the shooting of Americans by the Nicaraguan rebels were executed in violation of the rules of war.

The prompt action taken by the navy department has caused a very favorable impression in Washington and proves that the government intends to probe the killing of Americans to the bottom.

One Victim a Pennsylvanian.

Nothing is known at the state department of the antecedents of Leonard Grace, but it is believed he has been shot, but the other American, Carl Baurman, is said to be a son of an annual caterer in Central America. The family of the Baurmans live in Pittsburg, Pa., but it is not known if the family was aware of the fate of their son.

Bluefields is the capital of Alnay, N. Y., passed an ordinance which, if approved, will make the Fourth of July celebration in that city to the use of fireworks illegal.

MAN AND WIFE IN LIVELY FIGHT

Mrs. Charles Riggs Has Husband Arrested for Assaulting her. Claims he Knocked her Down. Defended herself with Paddle.

Charles Riggs charged with having assaulted his wife on Friday evening at their home on York street, was Saturday given a hearing before Squire Hill and in default of bail he was held for Court.

Mrs. Riggs appeared against her husband and declared that while she was cooking supper on Friday evening Mr. Riggs came into the kitchen and demanded a package containing some shells and other hunting materials. She answered that she knew nothing about them whereupon he disappeared after calling her a liar.

Several minutes later he returned and again asked for the package and when Mrs. Riggs denied any knowledge of it he attacked her and a lively battle ensued. She testified at the hearing that he hit her on the nose causing it to bleed profusely and he left up her shoulder so that it had been struck with considerable force. Mrs. Riggs declared herself very much alarmed and her husband had a club on his hand to show where it had taken effect.

The fight continued for some little time and finally Mr. Riggs succeeded in getting his wife out of the door into the yard where, she claims, no knock-out blow landed. She hurried back into the home and ate supper, later coming to the door and inviting Mrs. Riggs to supper but she refused to meet him. She declined and later in the evening went to Squire Hill's office where she swore out a warrant for her husband's arrest.

Constable Wilson found the man and placed him in jail. He returned to that place under the hearing and in lieu bail is secured will remain there until January Court.

McWILLIAMS GETS 3 YEARS

Negro who Entered Home of Jacob Strang after Midnight Given Heavy Penitentiary Sentence.—Jackson and Monroe on Probation

William McWilliams was Monday morning sentenced in Adams County Court to undergo a sojourner of three years imprisonment in the Eastern Penitentiary for entering at night the residence of Jacob Strang with the intent of committing a felony.

The man entered the dwelling in question at 12 o'clock several weeks ago and pleaded guilty. He claimed his home was in Spottsylvania, Virginia and that he did not know how he got into the Strang house. He was represented by Edward A. Weaver Esq., who said that the man lived nearby and had gotten into the wrong house on his way home.

The next case taken up were those against Tyndall Jackson and Norman Monroe who plead guilty to the larceny of coal from the cars of the Western Maryland railroad. The coal thus stolen was now that one resident of Gettysburg had hauled full of stolen coal which he would retail during the Winter months. Mr. Duncan said that some fifteen men had been seen by every Foil and carried on the business during the Winter months, delivering it to Baltimore in the Spring. Mr. Duncan asked the Court to do something which would stop the coal stealing permanently, declaring that the loss to the company had run up into thousands of dollars.

J. Donald Swope Esq. represented the defendants and, after calling the attention of the Court to their previous good record, showed that Jackson was not of sound mind and was unable to earn any for some time. In the face of this and the illness of his wife he started out with his brother-in-law, Monroe, one morning to pick a coal along the Tracks. They could find none and in desperation took a boiler from a car. They were caught and held for Court. Mr. Swope showed that they had not started out with the intention of stealing coal, it was their first offense and that the conditions were unusually favorable.

Judge Swope put both on probation for a year after receiving their promises that they would refrain from stealing in the future and would also help the company to apprehend other offenders.

William Stanton was sentenced to two months in the county jail for having been found guilty of the same offense. The Court said that he imposed sentence on him, not for what he did on the others, because he had prejured himself and gotten his family to do likewise.

Judge Swope then declared that the coal stealing cases have to stop and that any others convicted in the future of such offense would be given a penitentiary sentence unless conditions were most peculiar.

The two Indians found guilty on Saturday were not sentenced, motion having been made by their counsel, Edward A. Weaver Esq., for a new trial.

IS IT FAIR? IS IT SQUARE?

There may be many, any number of reasons for a trip to the city from a honeymoon to a baseball game.

There is not however one good reason why any one who lives, moves and has his being in the Home Town to do any retail shopping in the city.

Retail Shopping is an obligation upon every individual in the Home Town to be done at Home.

Where do you get your living? Where do you sell your labor? Where do you dispose of the things you have for sale? The Home Town.

Your clients if you are a lawyer, your patients if you are a doctor, your parishioners if you are a preacher are from the Home Community. If you live on interest the income is earned in the Home Town and the principal was made there. If you are paid a salary it comes from the Home Town. You would not be able going through the town with a fine tooth comb to find any individual independent of the Home Town for all that is worth while. Every single mother's son and daughter of us are dependent upon the rest of us.

Then the Fair and Square Thing is to give the Home Town your retail shopping support to the limit and give it, patriotically as it were, as an obligation you owe that Home Town.

Should not the dollars spent with and to you be spent by you in the community from which they came? Don't they belong to that community.

Live And Let Live At Home.

TROUBLE FOR SAM WEINSTEIN

Gettysburg Junk Dealer Gets into Trouble in York. Receives Stolen Goods and has his License Revoked.

Samuel Weinstein, formerly of this place and now trading in York as the Gettysburg Junk Company, was fined $100 by Mayor Weaver, and his license was revoked, for having withdrawn from the police jurisdiction prior to stolen goods purchased. The proceeding was brought under the new ordinance affecting junk dealers and pawn brokers.

Henry J. Enders, one of the two men arrested by Chief of Detectives White for stealing pig lead from the York Chemical Works, confessed that he sold 800 pounds of the metal to this company, although Weinstein had denied purchasing it. Under the ordinance, licenses are furnished junk dealers and pawn brokers, which must be listed all goods of any importance received, with the name of those who offer the articles. Weinstein had made no record of the lead purchase.

In the police court Lewis Jacobson, clerk for Weinstein, told of the purchase of the pig lead. The lead had been shipped to Philadelphia, where it was located, and Weinstein has agreed to return it to the Ferris Company paid for it in order to secure its return. Weinstein's license would be revoked, it was stated, but he is still a likely another person will take out the license.

The clerk, Jacobson, was discharged.

INTERESTING FIND

From Fulton county there comes the remarkable story of an iron ring, resembling a horse shoe, being recently found on the inside of a piece of timbered tree which was felled. The tree was building a lime kiln and in breaking a large rock the iron ring was found near the center.

How it got there is attributed to the formation of the stone around the ring years ago, when it was first placed and discovered. This, together with evidence of other similar finds, leads one to the conclusion that the American Indian was preceded by a race of people who had a knowledge of metal working, as is evidenced by finding of pieces of copper in burial mounds in that county abundant, possibly, a thousand years ago.

The metal of which the axes were made is rust proof and the points shine today as though they were with highly polished brass. The handles were of wood that had been previously treated by taking one of the axes and placing it in a retort from which the air had been excluded—the melted molds used in the picnics handles are as perfect today as the day they were fitted into the picks. The handles are not of wood with a sharp knife, but they are fire proof and will not burn.

Wood melting furnaces have also been found made of the materials that every parish had at hand, and have been able to figure out their uses.

Polton county's scenes richly in the press and magazines, would have delighted a race of people given to metal, as we see in the dawn of a thousand years ago that county was the scene of great activity.

Some odd curiosity in metal will be sent to the Smithsonian Institute and an effort will be made to interest relatives in the matter of a museum in Fulton county. Gettysburg is just twenty years ago or more that mother earth is now revealing to modern man.

TEAM GONE FOR THREE WEEKS

John Shultz Borrows Team of Franklin County Man and Brings it into Adams County. Followed by Owner of Team.

Taking a team for three weeks and coming into Adams County in search of a horse claimed as John Shultz, of Fountain Dale, into a heap of trouble was the experience of a man alleged forth on Friday to hunt Mr. Shultz and his property.

According to the story goes, had ay plied to Jacob Frick, of Waynesboro several months ago for work. He claimed that he was a gypsy in need of a place to earn a living and Mr. Frick, sensitive to his name, gave him a job. A few days later Shultz declared that he would like to move to Waynesboro and borrowed Mr. Frick's team consisting of a mule and spring wagon, to make the journey. The man which he claimed were near the Franklin county line.

That was the last Mr. Frick saw of Shultz or the team until Friday when he became so much concerned to remain idle our longer and started for the Fountain Dale. He drove over into this county and near Fountain Dale found Shultz, his wife and goods all in the wagon, driving towards Abbottstown. When asked for an explanation he laughingly chewed and his long borrowing of the team Shultz said he was hunting a home in the Fountain Dale section and could not being able to find one decided to return to Waynesboro.

The owner of the team and his employer kept on and returned to Waynesboro on Friday afternoon.

QUITE A DIFFERENCE

With the mild summer weather which prevailed for nearly the period of two days, is probable that but few people would think Sunday was just as good for the deepest snow of last winter fell.

On November 14, 1906 snow began to fall and kept on all that day and the morning and continued until 9 o'clock in the evening. Then it lay eight inches deep on the level. Since the greatest portion of this was contributed by Gettysburg, it is but doubtful if the snow fell very rapidly.

With the snow there came a drop in temperature and all that night it very cold, the thermometer hot a few degrees above zero.

LOST TO INDIANS

The Gettysburg College foot ball team lost to the Indians at Carlisle on Saturday to the Indian team on the same field and school, by the score of 25 to 6. The game was hard fought throughout but the Indians were too experienced. A large number of substitutes were used by Gettysburg but they just doubt this the orange and blue held the red skins for downs several times within the five yard line.

PEAS BLOOMING

Captain James T. Long has a large number of garden pea vines which are in bloom. It is a most unusual sight. Mr. Long says that he is thinking of a manner as is usually seen in May.

A START IN ALFALFA.

With alfalfa proving the benediction it is in so many sections of the south and middle west there is hardly a farm section where mulcture and temperature are favorable that the farmer are nevertheless meeting with quite considerable difficulty in successfully raising it. Certain working principles have been established which are to have been worked out, and a repetition of the mistake of the past may be of help to some who have never had any experience in the growing of alfalfa and which it is to be grown should be high and dry, while most any mixed but well drained soil will do and insure the purpose. The best time for sowing the seed is from the 1st to the 15th of August, a piece of land that has been in cultivated for some time is more preferable, as the weeds will be scarce. The seed should be given a top dressing of eight to ten tons of well rotted manure per acre and with each load a mustel or two of soil from an established alfalfa field or from a spot where sweet clover has grown should be mixed. If a silver pea, not exceeding a peck to an after the land is plowed and then harrow and roller will have been used insure and inoculated soil near the surface. Harrow and roller will be used at once. Only seed from a reputable source and guaranteed should be free from the seeds of noxious weeds should be sowed at the rate of about twenty pounds to the acre and preferably with a disk drill, which will insure all the seed being covered and placed in moist soil at a uniform depth, an important consideration if the weather should be very dry at planting time. The field should not be cut next fall, as all the growth will be needed to give a catch for the snow.

AN ODD COURTSHIP.

By M. QUAD.
(Copyright, 1920, by Associated Literary Press.)

The wife of Deacon Himm Pitt had been dead three years when it came to his ears that people were wondering why he didn't place a tombstone over her grave. At her death the sorrowing husband had fully intended to give her a monument thirty feet high, three months later he had reduced the height to fifteen feet; then he had good down four feet and he figured that a common gravestone would be all that was required. He had kept his own ideas about such matters, but when people begin to talk he must consult the ideas of others to a certain extent, and he finally found himself induced to put up a stone.

About the time the deacon had his wife Mrs. Pitt died, and he found the same village, lost her husband, and he also had a lively time of it between in her mind, and she also availed in the matter of a tombstone. If, moreover, there came a time when gossip criticized her for the unmarked grave, and she set about doing something. Her husband was a man who could not gossip follows one everywhere, but this cause found an unusual way to screen the decree drove out to the country grouped to fix up things, so that the world should not see the same object. The groves of their dead were not fifty feet apart. He drove over into this county and near Fountain Dale found Shultz, his wife and goods all in the wagon, driving towards Abbottstown. When asked for an explanation he laughingly chewed and his long borrowing of the team Shultz said he was hunting a home in the Fountain Dale section and could not being able to find one decided to return to Waynesboro.

The owner of the team and his employer kept on and returned to Waynesboro on Friday afternoon.

FARMHOUSE SANITATION.

The problem of house sanitation is largely solved by city residents who have drainage from their houses direct into good sewage systems. In smaller towns and in the country where such is not easy to attain it is possible, the matter of the house drainage and closet should receive careful attention. If there the householder has the means by all odds the best system is to install a bathroom, complete with good drainage for the well, bath and toilet. Water is a product of simple size located at a sufficient distance from the well so that there cannot be any possibility of contamination of the water supply. Many farmers have such a system is installed pipes from the kitchen sink and bathroom to the well. If this means are limited or the house is cold in the winter weather conditions are such that the pipes are likely to freeze, then a cheap bathroom will have to be made. While a bathtub would still be desirable, a bathroom would have to be made of the drainage from it at not to result in deposits which would be objectionable. When that is the case, the drainage from the toilet should be carried to a cesspool and arrangement made so that it may be pulled out by a team of horse, drawn to some distant spot and emptied in the open. If the cesspool is not very large,
